Art Unit: 1714

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marecki in view of GB '597.

Marecki discloses valve seals for handling hydrofluorocarbons under pressure (abstract). The material used is a thermoplastic elastomer which may contain customary fillers and additives. The reference lacks an explicit recitation of the use of HNBR and butyl rubber.

The GB '597 reference discloses valve seals for similar pressure systems comprising HBNR and butyl rubber.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute the HBNR/butyl rubber materials of the secondary reference for those of the primary reference with the reasonable expectation that suitable sealing properties would result.
